1. Introduction by the Co-Chairs of the Partnership Board

We are very pleased to introduce the new 3 year plan for learning disability services.

plan for buying services

This plan sets out how the money available will be spent on services for people with learning disabilities.

Under our new plan we will give more people the opportunity to know how much money there is to provide their support and the choice to organise the support for themselves, or to arrange for the council to buy the service for them.

We need to set up new services so people have more choices locally and also to reduce the number of people placed out of area. The new services we set up will need to be flexible so that they can be adapted to meet the needs of the person. We will also expect staff in services to be flexible and to work well with other people so that all of our needs can be met in the best possible way.

Finally, we want people with learning disabilities to have the same rights as other people. Through the work of the Partnership Board we will make sure that other services such as housing, health, education and work opportunities are accessible to people with learning disabilities.

2. Summary

The Learning Disability Commissioning Strategy is a plan for how money is spent on services for people with learning disabilities.

plan for buying services

To write a plan we need to look at a lot of information:

- ✓ What the government and other people say

- ✓ What services we have now

- ✓ What people need

- ✓ How much money we have

- ✓ What local people say

3. What has happened since the last plan?

The last plan was written in 2005. A lot has changed since then.

Valuing People Now and a lot of other important papers that affect people with learning disabilities have been written.

We have also learnt a lot more about the services we have and the people that use them.

Since the last plan we have done a lot of work to improve people's lives and services, but we know much more needs to happen.

More people have Person Centred Plans. We have put it in contracts that providers must support people to have Person Centred Plans. We did a survey and more than 70% of services who replied said people had a plan or had started one. (61% of people replied).

We have reduced the number of people living 'out of area' (outside of Brighton and Hove) by 5 since last year and have started to help another 10 people to move back.

The quality of some services has also improved. In particular the council run registered care homes now all meet the 'good' standard.

There have been year-on-year increases in the number of people in paid work (up from 13 to 20 in the last year) and numbers of people in voluntary work (up from 53 to 75 in the last year).

We have completed reviews of Day Services and Accommodation Services and have started a review of the Care Management Team. These reviews aim to make sure services are fair, good value for money and meeting peoples' needs and we will use action plans from these reviews to make improvements.

We have worked to help people get Self Directed Support to give them more choice and control. There are more people with learning disabilities with Self Directed Support – up from 15 in 2007 to 67 in 2008.

To improve information and advice about housing we had a Housing Event in July 2007, in partnership with the Carers Centre.

We also have a new worker in the Housing Options team to work with people with learning disabilities to improve their housing choices and help them move on to more independent living.

To improve access to health services we have a new 'Health Facilitator' for people with learning disabilities. Her job is to work with GP practices to improve the service they offer people with learning disabilities. About two-thirds of them have agreed to provide an 'enhanced' service, which means a better service, including health checks every year.

Also, two 'Liaison Nurses' have been recruited to work at the local hospitals. Their job is to make sure people with learning disabilities get the treatment they need if they have to go to hospital.

Key Points

What has happened since the last plan?

1. There have been a lot of important papers, like Valuing People Now, that tell us how services should be in the future.
2. We have worked to improve services and have reviewed services to see where we can make positive changes.
3. We have new workers to help people access health and housing.
4. We have been helping people have Self Directed Support, which gives people more control about what services they get.

4. What do the government and other people say?

Valuing People Now is an update of Valuing People and aims to improve the lives of people with learning disabilities.

Valuing People Now will be available in January 2009. We expect it to tell us that services should be personal to people's needs and should offer choice and control, especially in important areas like housing, health and activities.

People with learning disabilities should have equal access to services and should have the same rights as any other person.

We have to meet the aims of Valuing People Now by spending the money we have in the best possible way – Value for Money.

'Value for Money' – this is how we measure if a service is good quality and is fairly priced compared to other services.

Other important guidance includes 'Independence, Well Being and Choice', 'Our Health, Our Care, Our Say', 'Putting People First', and the 'The Mansell Report'.

They covered different areas but the messages are similar – we need to make sure services are personal to peoples needs and allow all people to have choice, control, equal access and independence.

They say services should be provided locally for people with high needs. Organisations (like the council, the NHS and service providers) need to work together to make sure this happens.

They also all say we need to make sure we meet people's needs as early as possible, so that we can avoid people having a crisis.

They say that we need to make sure that people with learning disabilities have the same rights and access to other services – like housing, health, education and employment - as other people.

More recently, the national health care report 'Healthcare for All' found that people with learning disabilities find it much harder than other people to access health services they need and parents and carers often find their opinions ignored.

'Healthcare for All' has 10 actions that people in health need to follow to make sure that people with learning disabilities are treated equally. One of these actions is to make sure that we collect information on the needs of people with learning disabilities.

We also have national and local guidance about working together with carers. 'The National Strategy for Carers, 2008' aims to make sure carers are respected as experts and get the support they need. 'Brighton and Hove Multi-Agency Carers' Strategy 2006-9' says that we must make sure we work with carers when we plan and make sure we provide them with information and support.

There are links to all key papers on the next page. If you would like more information or to get a copy of the guidance, please contact the Commissioning Team (see details at the end of the plan).

Key Points

What the government and other people say

1. Valuing People Now says people should have more choice, control and greater independence.
2. Valuing People Now says services should be personal to people's needs.
3. Other important papers say people should have fair access and equal rights.
4. Self Directed Support can help make services more personal and increase choice and control.

5. What services do we have?

There are 702 people who use a learning disability service at the moment (September 2008). These are all people whose social care services are paid for by the Brighton and Hove City Council and Brighton and Hove Primary Care Trust budget. In addition there are 70 people supported by the specialist learning disability health team who are placed here by other councils.

People who get a specialist learning disability service from us need to meet the council's 'eligibility criteria'.

'Eligibility criteria' – this is what the council uses to decide if someone can get services paid for by the council. People with higher needs will get services and people with lower needs will not, but they can still get advice and information about support they can get.

To get more information, look at the contact details at the back of this book.

The services they get include:

The Community Learning Disability Team:

- Care Managers who assess people to see if they can get support and work with carers.
- Reviewing Officers who make sure people are getting the right support.
- Social Workers who make sure people are supported safely.
- Health workers to support people with health needs.

Support at home:

257 people live in residential care (March 2008), where they get accommodation as well as support with their daily lives, often living with other people in a shared house. This includes 3 people in nursing care.

91 people live in Supported Living accommodation, where people often have their own flat, but still get support at home.

97 people get floating support, where support staff come and visit them in their own home.

Some people use respite services – 93 people had a short term respite break in 2007-8.

Respite is when a person with learning disabilities has time away from their carers and is supported by some one else.

37 people live in an Adult Placement, which means they live with a family who support them.

Other Support:

261 people use learning disability day services, which provide activities and learning for people with learning disabilities.

We have two independent advocacy services in Brighton and Hove for people with learning disabilities. Advocacy means speaking up for your rights and for what you think and want. Advocates are people who can help you to change things that you do not like.

The Employment Support Team supports 105 people in paid employment. 75 people are also supported locally to do voluntary work.

Self Directed Support:

There are 67 people with learning disabilities who have Self Directed Support which includes people receiving Direct Payments. There is an explanation of what Self Directed Support is on the next page.

What is Self Directed Support?

Self Directed Support is when:

- You know how much money you can get for support
- You choose the support yourself
- You can have help to choose support services and to look after the money

You get the money for your services.

You can choose your support

Direct Payments and Individual Budgets are different types of Self Directed Support.

So far, people have spent their money on things like:

- Staff to support them
- Drop In sessions at Day Services
- Doing voluntary work
- Buying things that help (e.g. a CD player that helped someone stay calm)
- Holidays, instead of normal respite breaks
- Learning new skills for a more independent life

For more information use the Contacts list (part 14 of this book)

We review the contracts and agreements we have about the services we fund.

= Assessment-monitor-checking

We have also reviewed different types of services helps us make sure we make the right decisions about the future of services.

Accommodation Review (looking carefully at our accommodation):

= Report.

In 2006 we asked people what they thought about accommodation services in the city. We used this information to produce our Learning Disability Housing Strategy in November 2007.

More recently, in 2008 we did a review of 30 different accommodation services from three of our biggest providers. We wanted to find out if there were any differences in cost and quality.

We found that some of the buildings were no longer suitable for people who lived there.

We also found that the cost of some services was not linked to the level of support provided.

This information will be used to develop a plan to improve services.

Care Management Review (looking carefully at the care management team):

= Making a report.

There is work being done now to look at how the Care Management Team can work best to support people with learning disabilities.

This is because we want to give people more choice and control over how their support is organised.

This means we need to change the way the council's care managers work.

We do however think that some things will remain the same, especially to support people with high or complex needs and to work on keeping people safe.

Each year the team needs to review people's needs as sometimes people's needs increase and sometimes they reduce. The government says the council must review three quarters of people (75%) each year. Last year for the first time the team did even better than the government target by reviewing 77% of people.

There are more people each year needing a service and this review will look at how best the team can manage this increase.

Day Services Review (looking carefully at our day services):

= Plan - Idea

We looked carefully at the council's day services and we think we can make services:

More person-centred

More flexible

More efficient

More widely available to learning disabled citizens of Brighton & Hove.

To do this we would have two different teams or services:

1 - A 'Day Options Team' giving advice, guidance and coordination to help people explore day activity options and help people make a person-centred timetable of activities using the support they have available. The team would arrange some work skills training as well as volunteer work, paid work, business opportunities and lots of other day activities.

2 - A 'Day Support Service' that is flexible and supports people to do day activities including work, education, socialising, etc. Special buildings (day centres) could be used, but only when people need and want them. Day support would be given to some people by their home staff or other services if that is possible.

We will take forward this idea through the 3 year plan.

Key Points

What services do we have?

1. The Community Learning Disability Team assesses people's needs and offers specialised health care.
2. To support people at home we have residential care, supported living and floating support.
3. During the day there are Day Services, Employment Support and Advocacy services.
4. We have done reviews of Accommodation services, Day services and Care Management and will use the information to make positive changes.
5. Self Directed Support has helped people to have more choice about what services they have.

6. What do people need?

For us to be able to plan what services people with learning disabilities should have in the future, we have to know what people will need in the future.

We know that there will be more people with learning disabilities in the future. Over the last year the number of people needing a service has increased from 647 to 702. In 2009/10, we expect there to be 724 people needing a service, in 2010/11 we expect 750 and in 2011/12 we expect 775.

We also expect that there will be more people needing a service who have higher needs. For example, there will be more young people with learning disabilities who become adults over the next 3 years and they are more likely to have complex and higher needs.

'Complex Needs' – this is when people have other needs as well as a learning disability. This can be needs like mental health problems, physical disabilities, long term health problems and challenging behaviour. People with complex needs will need carefully planned services that can meet all of their needs.

We need more services that are flexible and can support complex and high needs.

People living with older carers, will need more social and health care services as their carers get older. There will also be more older people with learning disabilities, who may also have dementia or have difficulty walking or need a wheelchair.

People with learning disabilities also need to be treated as equal citizens who have the same rights to access housing, health, learning and work. We need services that support people to help them to achieve these goals and to make sure they take account of people's communication needs.

Finally, we also need to think about people who do not meet our 'eligibility criteria' and make sure that we can offer them good advice and support to access community services.

In part 13 of this book, called 'Needs Information', you can read the detail about what we know about these things. We know we need to know more to improve our planning and that is why we have aims about better information in our plan.

Key Points

What people need

1. We have to look at what people might need in the future to help us plan services.
2. We know that we need to plan for more older people in the future.
3. We know that we need to plan for more people with higher and complex needs in the future.
4. We need to make sure that people have equal rights in the future and can have fair access to all services.
5. We need to make sure we can give people good information and advice.

7. How much money do we have?

Last year just over £29 million was spent on specialist services for people with learning disabilities.

- £27.65 million is made up of £21.5 million from the local authority, £6.15 million health funding from the Primary Care Trust (which includes £593,000 paid to Sussex Partnership Trust to provide specialist health services)
- £1.6 million Supporting People funding
- £238, 000 Learning Disability Development Fund

In December 2008 we will be telling the government how much money Health pays to support people with learning disabilities and also how much it pays to develop and take action on plans such as this one.

This is because from 2011 the Health money will come direct from the government to local councils.

We will be telling the government about the health funding that has been identified so far and also the 5 houses that Health provide for people with learning disabilities.

We will also be telling the government that this health money is not enough to pay for meeting the needs of people with learning disabilities, particularly for young people with learning disabilities whose needs are increasing.

What is the money spent on?

Of the £27.65 million from the council and health, 81% is spent on accommodation services.

11.5% is spent on day services.

Most of the remaining 8.5% pays for support to people in their own homes, short term respite breaks for family carers, and for assessment and other support services.

Over the next 3 years the amount of money will increase (see page 57) but we need to think about what is the best way to spend the money to make sure we are providing the right services for new people who need services (such as young people who are becoming adults, people who are getting older and people who are living with older carers).

Some of this can be done by making improvements in services, so that more is achieved for the money. Sometimes it is by making changes to services and sometimes it is by helping people to move into new services e.g. by helping people to move back to the city.

Supporting People

Of the £1.6 million of Supporting People funding – just over half (56%) is spent on supported living and the rest (44%) is support for people living in their own homes. The Supporting People 3 year strategy sets how this money will be spent between 2008 and 2011. It says it wants to spend more on helping people to move on to be more independent and to support more people to live in their own home.

Learning Disability Development fund

Learning Disability Development Fund (LDDF) is money given to the Learning Disability Partnership Board to spend on meeting the aims of Valuing People. Each year the Partnership Board decides how the LDDF money is divided up across different areas. This year money is being spent on carer support, the Travel Buddy scheme, advocacy, working with young people with learning disabilities, helping people get work and many other things.

The Learning Disability Partnership Board has just voted on what 'Priority Areas' to spend the money in 2009/10. Different sub-groups of the Learning Disability Partnership Board will look after each area and will decide how the money is spent.

How this money will be spent is set out in the next page.

How the Learning Disability Development Fund (LDDF) will be spent in 2009-2010.

Priority Area	Percentage of LDDF	Sub Group of partnership board who will spend the money
Partnership with Families	15.5%	Chairs Planning
Better Health	9%	Healthy Lives
Transitions	10%	Transitions Forum
Staff that Support People	4%	Workforce Development and Provider Forum
Better Housing to Live In	2%	A Place to Live
What People do in the Day	13%	Taking Part In the City and Work & Skills
Advocacy & Rights	20.5%	Chairs Planning
Choice & Control (Personalisation)	11%	Person Centred Approaches
Making It Happen & Including Everyone	10%	Chairs Planning
People as Local Citizens (community safety and fighting hate crime)	5%	Taking Part In the City

Key Points

How much money we have

1. There is £29 million for learning disability services.
2. Most of it is spent on accommodation and day services.
3. Some government money to spend on learning disabilities goes to the Primary Care Trust (Health), but in 2 years time it will go to the Council.
4. There is a special pot of money to make improvements, called Learning Disability Development Fund and the Learning Disability Partnership Board decides how it is spent.

8. What do local people say?

From July to October 2008 we asked people what they thought should go in our plan.

On the 14th July we held an event to talk about our plan.

Over 60 people came, including people with learning disabilities, service providers, advocates, family members and health & social care workers. People were shown information about the plan and then asked to comment by asking questions, talking in groups and reading information we gave out.

Out of the people that came to the event, 14 filled out our feedback form.

10 people thought it was good, 4 people thought it was OK and nobody thought it was bad.

People said they liked the talks and chance to ask questions and discuss issues, but they said some parts were not made easy to understand and the room was too small.

Information was also sent out to a lot of people who are involved in learning disabilities including people who work in health and at the council. Organisations we contacted include:

- Brighton and Hove City Councils Learning Disability Services and Community Learning Disability Team
- Brighton and Hove City NHS Teaching Primary Care Trust
- Sussex Partnership Trust
- Southdowns Health NHS Trust
- Southdown Housing Association
- Downland Housing Association
- The Grace Eyre Foundation
- Brighton Mencap

- Speak Out advocacy
- Interact advocacy
- The Frances Taylor Foundation
- Downs View Link College
- Care Management Group
- Amaze
- Brighton and Hove Community and Voluntary Sector Forum
- Care Co-ops
- Tamarisk Housing

We also invited people to drop-in sessions for family carers and the public

We also talked to the sub-groups and forums of the Learning Disability Partnership Board, who are:

- The Link group – links to Advocacy Groups
- Chairs Planning
- Transitions Forum
- Workforce Development
- Person Centred Approaches
- A Place to Live
- Healthy Lives
- Work and Skills
- Taking Part in the City
- The Providers Forum
- Carers Link Group – links to Carers Centre and Amaze

We know, however, that we did not ask everybody what they think, but we will keep asking and continue to find better ways to talk to people in the future.

All the information given to us was collected to help us make this plan. The ideas we got from you came in writing, by email, in phone conversations and discussions in meetings and drop-ins.

We have thought about this information along with all the other information we have collected for this plan and tried to make sure the plan includes people's ideas, needs and wishes.

This is a summary of what you told us:

Housing

See what we will do about these things in Part 9 of this book - 'The Plan': Aim Six

You Said:

- People need more accessible housing
- Some people can't get into the kitchen or choose their own food
- People need to learn the skills they need to live more independently
- We need to have more than one pathway to independence
- People need more accessible information
- We need houses in locations people want
- We must involve carers and professionals
- We must improve current properties
- We must talk to people with learning disabilities
- We need to invest in more learning disability housing
- People want independence - access to their own key and access and control over their own facilities.
- People want choice over who they live with.
- People need support with difficult neighbours
- There are not enough choices for people - we need more shared ownership and individual flats
- Change age limit on sheltered housing
- We should make links with private landlords
- We should make long term plans for flexible services
- We should share information with providers so they can develop the right services
- We need a clear tendering process
- Not all people want to move on
- Living alone can mean people get isolated

"New + more flats + houses in the middle of Brighton"
- Person with a learning disability

"More in-house accommodation for older people" - Staff member

Day services/Learning/Leisure

See what we will do about these things in Part 9 of this book - 'The Plan': Aim Seven

You said:

- Families need a long time for consultation about changes to adjust
- Continue to focus on making links in the community but make sure that social and emotional support is given priority
- Staff need time and to be fully involved and engaged in change
- Long transitions are needed from old to new services
- We will always need specialised, skilled day service staff and safe places for people to learn and practice life skills
- We need more supported employment schemes
- Employers need to do more to help
- There are transport issues & we need to expand travel buddy scheme
- The right courses are needed
- We need different courses to try out - new courses - ask people with learning disabilities what they want
- You want courses that lead to qualifications/are vocational
- Courses must be at the right level - don't patronise people
- Tutors need to better understand people with learning disabilities
- People want more support with funding (recent changes mean they now pay for college courses)
- We need alternatives to respite
- We must risk assess activities
- Support people in social activities
- Channel peoples' energy positively
- Support people to access mainstream services
- Use ideas of friends and influence day centres
- People need social and emotional support as well as practical
- We want courses to help us to get qualifications to help us get a job
- We want new courses e.g. working with animals, becoming a DJ and apprenticeships rather than the same courses every year

"There are no courses for me because of my poor eyesight. They should have courses for everyone"

- Person with a learning disability

Self Directed Support:

= Getting your money

See what we will do about these things in Part 9 of this book - 'The Plan': Aim Two = Choosing a Support Worker.

You said:

- You need more accessible info
- I think it's a good idea but we need to know more about this. People need training and information so they can make choices
- We should provide self directed support for young people in particular
- Housing is a barrier to self directed support
- You want to know how brokerage will work
- You need more information generally - people with learning disabilities, families, carers and professionals
- You want self-directed support to be more available
- You are worried about more pressure being put on families
- You think advocates need to support people make choices about support
- We need to check more closely if others are spending the money
- You need support worker time to help sort it out
- We need to train staff to prepare for future services
- Will one 'Family Support Worker' be enough?
- How will we prepare services for self directed support and how will we 'shape the market'?
- We need to make sure change is gradual
- People need to be well supported to make choices
- Service providers need to respond to what people want
- Staff need to be well trained to understand and meet peoples choices
- There are worries about people's money and who will look after it
- People will need support if they are 'employers'

Work

See what we will do about these things in Part 9 of this book - 'The Plan': Aim Seven

You said:

- We need staff to support people to work
- We need to support people to get work experience
- We need to create volunteering opportunities
- Use the employment support team
- You want apprenticeships
- Job Centre Plus need to work better with people with learning disabilities
- People want to work but are worried about losing benefits
- We think employers do not understand the needs of people with learning disabilities
- Brighton & Hove City Council should support more people with learning disabilities to work for them
- Brighton & Hove City Council should insist that people they contract with have supported employment schemes for people with learning disabilities
- The Supported Employment Team should have a part that works particularly with people with severe learning disabilities.
- Support in employment should be for as long as it is needed, not just a few visits
- Create a post to look at creative ways to support people into employment and to campaign for better opportunities in work for people with learning disabilities.

"Encourage entrepreneurship of people with learning disabilities and those caring for &/or working with them, e.g. working with the colleges to turn their fledgling schemes into operative businesses, cafes, restaurants, artwork, horticulture etc."

- Family member of a person with a learning disability

Local services

Brighton & Hove

See what we will do
about these things in
Part 9 of this book -
'The Plan': Aim Eight

You said:

- There must be clear processes
- People need to be involved in long term plans now because it can take a long time to develop local services for people who are out of area
- Use Person Centred Plans to see who wants to move back and what they need
- Be person centred - involve circles of support
- Make sure people can get the right support locally - health/housing/mental health needs - an holistic approach
- People should have choice of provider
- Monitor those out of area carefully
- We need services for 'dual diagnosis' - e.g. people with learning disabilities and physical disabilities and/or mental health needs
- We need to joint fund assessment and treatment centres with other authorities
- We need to train local staff to support complex needs and challenging behaviour
- We should employ brokers to help move people back into the area
- There needs to be long term planning, involving providers, so that we can develop the right services

Health

You said:

See what we will do about these things in Part 9 of this book - 'The Plan': Aims Four & Five

- People need Health Action Plans and health checks
- People need more community nurse support
- You need more information & advice
- Health Action Plans should be incorporated into Person Centred Plans so that they consider all people's needs
- We need more training and skills for support workers about health care
- People need more support around health - 'health advocates'
- Some people with learning disabilities felt more in control and had few complaints
- We need to plan strategically for people with 'dual diagnosis'

"Doctor's understanding learning disabilities more"

- Person with a learning disability

"I went to the Doctors. They had a screen that you had to use to sign in. I did not know how to use it. The receptionist got really narked with me in front of everyone. They should know that people won't know how to use it"

- Person with a learning disability

People with learning disabilities think things are 'looking up' - Advocacy group.

Transitions

See what we will do
about these things in
Part 9 of this book -
'The Plan': Aim Ten

You said:

- Work closely and plan well with children services and families
- Prepare families and work with them as equal partners
- Use person centred transition reviews
- Use information in young people' support services to plan adult services
- We need to talk and meet with people in children's services
- Work with young people to have Self Directed Support and involve providers so they know what people want and can develop the right services
- Make sure we support young people into work, learning and leisure with the right staff support

Voice

See what we will do about these things in Part 9 of this book - 'The Plan': Aim Fourteen

You said:

- We need to do carer's assessments
- How will we tell people what we have done?
- We need more advocacy available for people with complex needs
- Information should be distributed in other ways than web or email - hard copies and accessible formats
- Advocacy should be available for all vulnerable adults
- More advocacy - again
- Fund advocacy services
- Monitor communications
- Make sure all people with learning disabilities and their families are contacted for important developments

"Ask me more"

-Person with a learning disability

"Increased funding and information on becoming an advocate"

Information - for people

See what we will do about these things in Part 9 of this book - 'The Plan': Aim Fourteen

You said:

- You want a menu of services
- You want us to improve the way we communicate with people with learning disabilities
- You want to know where to get help - information about support, assessment and eligibility
- You want more signposting for service users and carers
- You want a one stop shop for information
- There could be leaflets at GP surgeries and schools
- You want more information about charges for services and benefits

Information - about people

See what we will do about these things in Part 9 of this book - 'The Plan': Twelve

You said:

- We need to do more research about people's needs
- Use the resources of professionals, families and carers to understand people's needs
- Develop a system to collect the information for commissioning
- Use Person Centred Plans to plan services!!! - a lot of people said this.
- Care managers are too busy to keep up with all the information and share it with people

Other things

See what we will do about these things in Part 9 of this book - 'The Plan': particularly Aims One, Eleven, Thirteen,

You said:

- Respite for those that need it
- We need to change attitudes of people in the population
- Many staff still do not understand person centred plans
- Early intervention for people who suffer from anxiety
- Support for those that do not meet eligibility criteria
- Stop waiting until people get into a crisis
- Provide free basic skills training to those people who don't meet eligibility criteria to help maximise independence and provide a good prevention service
- How are we planning for older people with learning disabilities
- We need to communicate more accessibly
- 'if it's not broke...don't fix it'
- We need to support people to manage risks in their lives and not over protect them, as well as provide training for staff to support people in this way
- We need to change attitudes to people with learning disabilities and offer training to help with this when needed
- We need to training for staff that looks at ways to promote independence and interdependence for people with learning disabilities and their families.
- Safeguarding Adults procedures must protect vulnerable adults who might have allegations made against them.
- If the OT service changes who will not be getting a service?
- We should not commission profit-making providers
- What will be our procedure to learn from complaints, Safeguarding Adults reports and other procedures

9. The Plan.

This table shows what we plan to do.

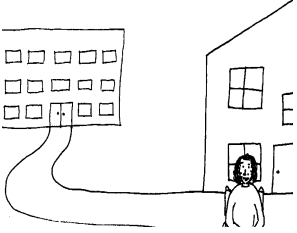

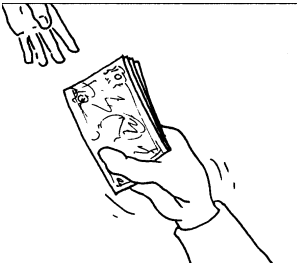

The first column, 'Our aims', shows what our main aim is. There are 15 aims in the plan. We have written in here the names of the any recent national guidance that the aims link to.

The next column 'What we will do' lists what things we will do to make our aims happen.

The last column shows 'Who will make sure it happens'. The 'Lead Group' in this column will make a work plan to show how they will do the work and by when. We will check that people are following the plan three times a year.

They will also report to the Learning Disability Partnership Board on the work every year.

There are also groups listed who will need to help get the work done.

Big Priority 1:
Personalisation

Putting People First

- ✓ Make information more available on services, cost and brokerage and ensure it is available in a variety of formats.
- ✓ Collect outcomes so that we can use the learning to improve how things work and inform our plans
- ✓ Provide more information for people on self directed support and what options are available to them.
- ✓ Make sure that people have person centred plans and set up ways to check the quality of these plans
- ✓ Make sure that carers are supported and involved with good information and advocacy available.

Aim Three:

We want to make sure people are kept safe and risks are minimised

= Keeping Safe

- ✓ Safeguard people with professional social work and the Sussex Multi-Agency Policy and Procedures for Safeguarding Adults.
- ✓ Give people with self directed support the information, advice and support they need to keep safe.
- ✓ Continue to support providers to balance keeping people safe and supporting people to take risks
- ✓ Make sure we continue to involve carers

10. How We Work

This chart shows what the structure is for making the decisions about spending the Learning Disability budgets.

11. Words List.

Advocacy - this means speaking up for somebody and representing their best interests. Advocates can help you change things that you do not like and work for your rights.

Assessment - this means measuring something for example measuring someone's support needs

Brokerage - this is when someone finds services for you and helps you buy the ones you want. Sometimes you pay a 'broker' to do this, but lots of people could do this for you.

Carer - carers look after family, partner or friends in need of help because they are ill, frail or have a disability. The care they provide is unpaid.

Care Management Team - this team assesses people to see if they are eligible for support and also review people's support to make sure it is at the right level. This team also makes sure people are kept safe.

Challenging Behaviour - behaviour that is a physical safety risk for the person or other people or that can seriously limit or delay access to community services.

Commissioning - this is about buying new services, making sure services are right for people and making changes to services. It also includes working with services in the community that all people use, to make sure that they are accessible to people with learning disabilities. Commissioners who do this job must make sure that people with learning disabilities and their carers are involved in any changes and are listened to.

Community Learning Disability Team - this team includes the Care Management Team as well as health staff who specialise in working with people with learning disabilities.

Direct Payments - this is a type of Self Directed Support where you get money to spend on a particular service or to employ staff.

Equalities Impact Assessment - this means measuring any affect something has on particular groups to make sure that people are not more disadvantaged. .

Floating Support - this is when staff come and visit you at your home to support you instead of being there all the time.

Learning Disability - this includes;

- a significantly reduced ability to understand new or complex information (impaired intelligence), with;
- a reduced ability to cope independently (impaired social functioning) and;
- which started before adulthood, with a lasting affect on development.

Residential Care - this is when you get care, support and accommodation together and the service you get is checked by the Commission for Social care Inspection (CSCI).

Respite - this means having a break. This can be a break for people with learning disabilities or their carers.

Review - this means looking at something carefully and saying if it is working well. It usually involves writing a report.

Safeguarding - this means taking action to keep people safe who are being abused or are at risk of being abused. This is work done by social workers who are specially trained to do this and who work to national and locally agreed guidelines.

Self Directed Support - this is when people are told how much money they can get for services and they have choice and control over how the money is spent. This is sometimes called Individual Budgets.

Strategy - this is a plan setting out what services will look like in the future.

Supported Living - this is where you have your own tenancy or you own your own home

13. Needs Information.

As we have said, 702 people use a learning disability social service at the moment.

These are the people we know most about.

Their needs include:

Needs of people with learning disabilities getting a service now
Downs Syndrome	14%
Autistic Spectrum	21%
Mobility problems	20%
Wheelchair users	10%
Mental Health	15%
Sensory impairment	12%
Epilepsy	18%
Diabetes	3%
Challenging Behaviour	25%

The number of people needing services is expected to rise to 724 in 2009, to 750 in 2010 and to 775 in 2011. Many people have more than one need, so they will need a very individual package of support.

For example, we need to also know about their gender, age and ethnicity to check that services are meeting people's needs fairly.

Age of People receiving a Learning Disability Service

Proportion of People receiving a Learning Disability Service who are from an Ethnic Minority

As well as those people getting a service now, we need to think about all people in the city with a learning disability.

This includes a number of groups.

1. Young People:

There are 63 young people who will be 18 in the next 3 years and are likely to need a specialised service. Our transition team has helped us look at their needs and possible support needs over the coming years.

Needs of 63 young people with learning disabilities needing a service in the next 3 years

Downs Syndrome	21%
Autistic Spectrum	37%
Mobility problems	3%
Wheelchair users	16%
Mental Health	n/a
Sensory impairment	11%
Epilepsy	24%
Diabetes	n/a
Challenging Behaviour	27%

We can see that a number of support needs are more common in this group of young people. There are signs that young people have more complex needs that we need to plan for.

Predicted support needs of 63 young people with learning disabilities needing a service in the next 3 years

Year	Help to live at home with respite	Supported Living	Residential Care	Adult Placement	Day Activity
2008/9	12	0	3	3	0
2009/10	10	2	4	2	2
2010/11	11	8	4	1	6
2011/12	1	5	6	1	4
2012/13	0	3	0	0	1
2013/14	0	0	0	0	6
2014/15	0	2	1	0	4

Number of people who might be interested in Self Directed Support = 30

We can also see that those young people will need a range of support options, over a number of years.

We need to work closely with the teams that support young people and children, to make sure we are ready to support them as adults.

One of the groups we work with is Amaze, who support families with children who have disabilities, including learning disabilities. Amaze collect information using a register called the Compass. Reports from the Compass suggest that children with disabilities are more likely to live in the more deprived wards of the city. We need to make sure we are available to support those families, who might need extra support to get information and advice as their young people become adults.

This is something that is also seen in national research, Valuing People said there is a link between mild to moderate learning disabilities and deprivation (source: Valuing People, 2001).

2. Other people with higher needs:

National research tells us there could be about 870 people in Brighton and Hove with a moderate/high learning disability, more than the 702 that are getting services.

Some of these people might have support from families now, but might need a learning disability service in the future.

For example, Valuing People said that one third of adults with learning disabilities living at home are living with carers over 70. In Brighton and Hove this could be about 150 people.

For people who do not get a learning disability service now, there might be a time when their carers get to old to support them and we need to be ready to provide services.

3. People with lower needs.

National research tells us there could be about 5000 people in Brighton and Hove with a mild/moderate learning disability. Most of these people will not be getting a service, but we need to make sure they can get good advice, information and help to get support they need.

We do not know much what these people need and we need to find ways to improve on that so we can support them.

We need to make sure there are easy ways for them to get information and that community services are easy to access for them.

4. People's changing needs.

The adult learning disability population is growing. This is because people with learning disabilities are living longer and healthier lives and of course we want to make sure this carries on. It means that we need to prepare services for more people who are coping with more complex needs.

Also, we know that we need to make plans as people get older and have some of the health problems that can come with old age, like dementia and difficulty walking. As support for people with learning disabilities improves then people will live longer and will need different kinds of support in their later years.

5. People with very complex needs.

We know that the number of people with complex needs will increase each year.

We can provide support for many people locally. But some people need to move out of the city to be supported - 115 of the 702 people that get a service paid for by Brighton and Hove City Council actually live outside of Brighton and Hove.

However, Brighton and Hove is quite small and most people (69) live within Sussex. It can, however, be difficult for the 46 people who live further away.

We are therefore going to try to help people who live further away to move back if they want to. Sometimes, people are living away from Brighton and Hove because we do not have the right services to meet their complex needs. This might mean they have learning disabilities as well as needs such as mental health problems, physical or sensory impairments and 'challenging behaviour'.

We will therefore set up new services to meet these needs and set up these services so that they are flexible so that they can adapt to people's needs.

We also want to get better at planning for people with very complex needs by looking carefully at what their support needs are and working with other authorities and other departments such as Health to set up services.

6. Person centred reviews

The best way to get information about people's needs is from people themselves in Person Centred Reviews. We have started to ask people to send information from their reviews to our Community Learning Disability Team so we can then use the information to plan services. In the first year of this work 71 people responded.

We looked at what this information could tell us about what services we need more of in the city.

In the future we will get many more responses and we will use this information to make sure we know what people want and need. We also will use information from young people and other people who may need services to plan future services.

A summary of what we know from the 71 people who responded this year is included below.

Summary of Results from Person Centred Feedback Form.

Work:

- 40% of people, who did not have a job, wanted one.

People said the main barriers to getting a job were getting the right support and finding the opportunities.

Learning:

- Most people were involved in supported learning.
- About one third of people wanted more learning opportunities.

Some of the barriers to change included; issues about access and transport, availability of courses, staff support and funding/costs.

Leisure and Fun:

- People were involved in a wide range of activities.
- 30% of people wanted more leisure opportunities.

The barriers to change included staff support, finances, information and transport.

Feeling Well and good about self:

- About 25% wanted an improvement in this area.
- Specific areas included improvements in communication, mobility and health (e.g. smoking, epilepsy).

Few people described barriers, but the most common one was access to NHS services.

Friends, Family and Relationships:

- 35% of people wanted an improvement in this area.
- These people expressed a desire for more relationships, more contacts with friends and family and more control over their social activities.

Barriers were said to be lack of staff or lack of service/funding.

Where and How I Live:

- 12% of people said they wanted to move
- Some people also said they wanted better and access in their homes and better relationships with their fellow residents.

The main barrier to change was waiting for alternative housing.

General Population Trends for Adults with Learning Disabilities in Brighton & Hove.

The following information is based on nationally researched data provided by the Care Services Improvement Partnership (CSIP).

The information is estimated and predicted, based on national research on learning disabilities and statistics on population.

We can see that the number of adults with learning disabilities is expected to rise gradually.

Here we can see that the number of people with learning disabilities who are over 50 is expected to rise more sharply.

This graph shows that the number of people with Down's syndrome or Challenging Behaviour will increase very slightly, but the number of people with Autism will rise more steeply.

This graph shows that there will be increases in the number of people in the city with Down's syndrome who are over 50, and that a number of them are likely to develop Dementia.

This graph shows that the biggest increase in people with learning disabilities will be in the 50-59 age group.

The pattern is the same for people with moderate or severe learning disabilities.
