

'What's to do' in Brighton and Hove?

charity no: 1076995

Brighton and Hove Speak Out are setting up a new project for people with mild learning disabilities called the 'What's to do' project.

The 'What's to do' project supports people with mild learning disabilities who are socially isolated. We will help people find places to go and meet new people to make their lives better. We have a limited number of places to support people through one to one advocacy or group work.

Would you like to be part of this project?
Do you know someone who might benefit from the
'What's to do' project?

If so, contact Sarah Pickard or Jo Clifton at:
